

Special LIVE online event
Wednesday, March 24, at 4 p.m.

WATCH ONLINE

PRE-REGISTER

The ally. Lead from where you are.

Dr. Orlando L. Taylor is a leader and an ally.

In this presentation, Taylor will share his experiences of supporting some of the most influential women in America, many of who led from the "second chair." In this special LIVE online event, he will tell their fascinating stories and provide keys to how you can be a leader within your own community—an ally—right from where you sit.

LEADERS TO KNOW

(included in Taylor's presentation)

Marie Fielder • Dolores Huerta • Mary Jackson • Katherine Johnson •
Dorothy Vaughan • Kamala Harris

Orlando L. Taylor, Ph.D., is the principal investigator and director for an NSF-funded grant at The Chicago School of Professional Psychology to advance women in the STEM fields into leadership positions at the nation's Historically Black Colleges and Universities and at Tribal Colleges. He has served as a member of numerous national boards in higher education, including the Board of Directors of the Council of Graduate Schools, which he chaired. He is the former dean of the School of Communications at Howard University in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Taylor received his doctorate from the University of Michigan and has been a recipient of that university's distinguished alumni award. He has been awarded honorary doctorate degrees from Purdue University, Indiana University, The Ohio State University, Hope College, DePauw University, Denison University and Southern Connecticut State University.

The event is organized by Grossmont
College's Media
Communications department.