Q5_3_TEXT - Other:

Other:

Yes all should be zero I feel

It depends if it is a core class I need

I wouldn't mind not having a class without ZTC as long as the textbook isn't over $50

depends more on teacher

It would depend on how many classes I was taking, and financial situation

Other:

It depends on what kind of class it is.

W.e. I need to do to get my education.

I prefer to have textbook. I wish instructor would identify what book you use before the start of the class especially if you are opting for used books. It always leave me scrambling for the right book when the class starts.

I would prefer but not able to

Doesn't make a difference to me

It does not matter for me

Yes, but I like the option of being able to purchase a low cost textbook

This is usually an option not seen in higher level classes such as health science classes. It would be nice if there was a low cost option

Don't really care

Only if it doesn't mess up my schedule

With my major I often don't get a choice of ZTC and not.

Honestly, I like using a physical copy but I just dislike the price that textbooks can get to. Normally a ZTC course means the textbook is in a file online and I'm not really a fan of that.

I would prefer that but most of the class require textbooks that cost money

Plus but I don't search by ztc

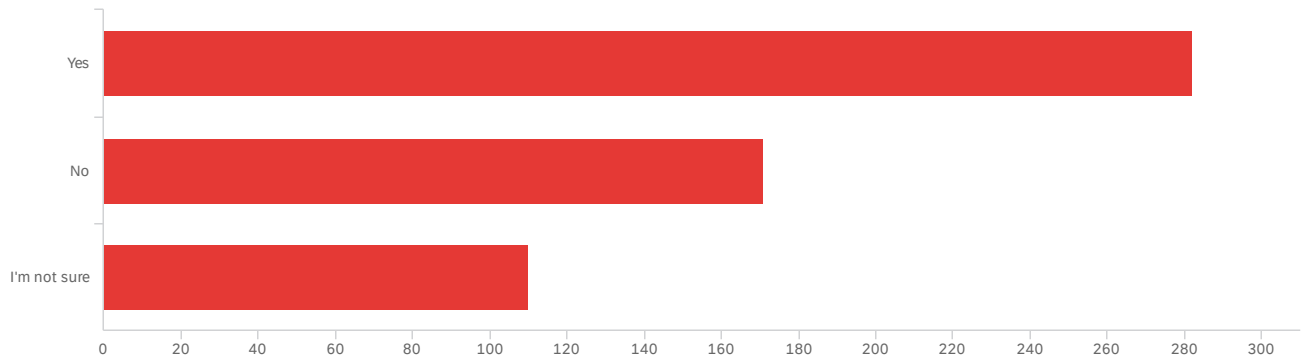

Whatever gives the option to still have a physical book.

doesnt affect

I don't mind

It depends

Q8_4_TEXT - Other:

Other:

I don't know

My financial aid covers for food rent and stuff I cant afford the stupid 100$ textbook for business when we barely every use it such a scam

Unsure

It covers most of the cost but some of the Professor especially since Covid have certain homework programs or specific textbooks that are required for the class that I have seen to be $50 or above that I'm unable to purchase With my book voucher and my financial aid usually come after the fact and a lot of these teachers want the specific materials to be purchased within the first week of class so it comes out of pocket

Other:

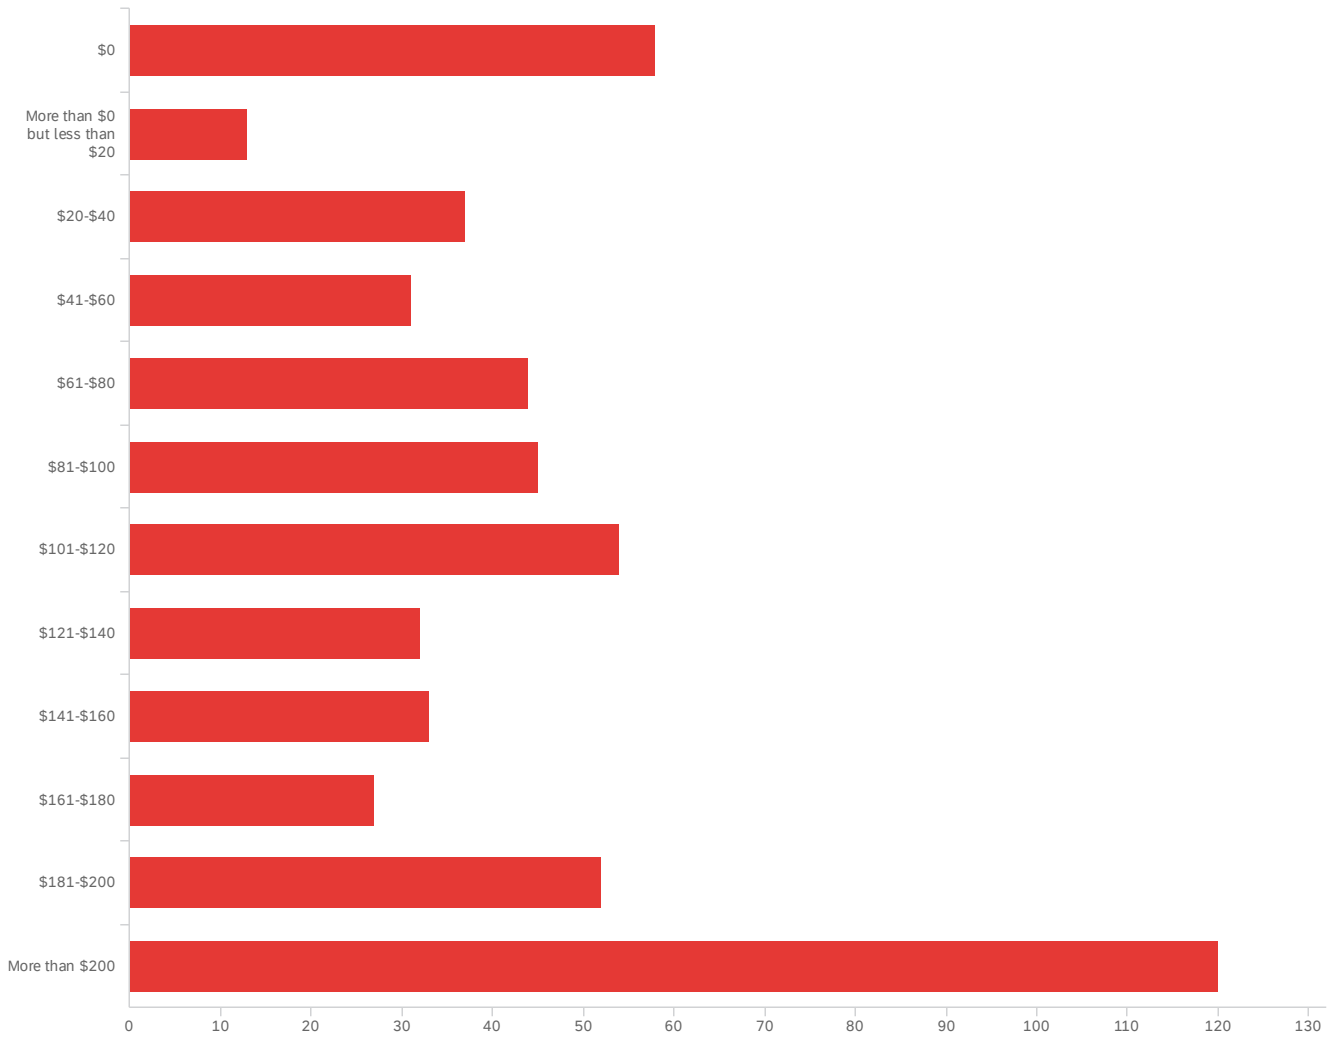

I haven't received my financial aid for the semester, so I paid for my books and codes myself.

It depends sometimes it does cover it & sometimes I have to pay out of pocket.

I got the beer for free

My book voucher does not but I use my financial aid to cover the remaining balance.

In the Spanish course I am taking this semester (fall 2021) I was able to purchase a textbook and course material online access once that works for several semesters.

VHL central for Spanish

The online website of the book publishers

Links that the teachers send me

Information provided by instructors.

I was lent my book by a friend

I borrowed a textbook when I can. Then, it's a little hard following the chapters discussed in the class since the class only by the new edition of the book. I am always scrambling what chapter will it be on my old version of the book.

they were online textbooks

Rented through Amazon

Slugbooks

campus/online

Connect

E text books , I try to rent books but they sometimes are not available so I'm forced to buy one

Cengage

publisher is the only outlet

Borrow them from friends

Access codes for homework assignments

I can't afford them most of the time.

Chegg

Campus mostly but rent if possible

The 2 courses I took were "no textbook" classes. I'm shocked with the cost of books. Very thankful I didn't need to buy any for my classes

This feels more like a marketing survey

I get them online

Other:

Along with the course needed for class

Instructor provides me the copy

Online classes are requiring online platforms, to do homework and assignments, named Connect or Cengage. It's an average of $150 for one class. If we have Canvas, why professors use that?

I only bought one textbook this semester and it was some kind of digital one.

It was my first semester

I used to buy from the bookstore or used books online. But I have often not purchased the textbooks altogether or found cheap pdf versions I can share with other students through Google drive
