“As an aspiring academic of history, I feel that my perspective is more relevant than ever. I have a well-developed understanding of American politics. I have adept skills of research, critical thinking, and analysis, which are important for staying informed, and making decisions. I am also a conscientious and open-minded person who values hard work and inclusivity. If given an opportunity to utilize and expand my skills, I am committed to representing our student body to the best of my ability.”
